

British Urge U.S. To Agree On Arms Cubans To Hear U.S. Side Of Story At Least 60 People Killed In South African Rioting

GENEVA (AP) — The British government was reported Monday night to be urging the United States to go along with the main lines of a new Soviet proposal for suspending nuclear tests.

This does not mean, informants said, that the British are ready to accept the proposal without question.

Both Western powers want to know more about the Soviet system for inspections of suspicious earth tremors.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin gave some of the answers to British and U. S. questions at Monday's session of the 17-month old three-nation negotiations for a treaty banning nuclear tests.

The U.S.S.R. has proposed the conclusion of a partial treaty providing a controlled ban on all types of nuclear weapon explosions except small underground tests.

An accompanying three-power moratorium would prohibit small underground tests while a joint scientific study would attempt to solve difficult detection problems involved in such blasts.

Tsarapkin said both the moratorium and the study could remain in force for four or five years with the expectation that the underground detection problem would be solved in that time.

If the four- or five-year period expired without results, Tsarapkin said, the moratorium and the studies could be continued for an additional time if the three nations agreed.

Tsarapkin wants no resumption of tests of any kind once the partial treaty and the moratorium go into force.

Neither Britain nor the United States intends to be trapped into a blanket-chance promise not to conduct tests until they see how the whole arrangement can be worked out.

Ike, Herter Confer On Soviet Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower met with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter Monday. The White House reported they gave serious consideration to the Soviet Union's newest proposal for an atomic test ban.

The administration drew a curtain of secrecy around a letter Eisenhower sent Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. This reportedly assured him the United States has no present plans to share atomic weapons with its allies.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty declined to confirm or deny reports to that effect.

Diplomatic officials said, however, Eisenhower had sent such a letter, replying to a March 8 message from Khrushchev. The Khrushchev letter protested what he complained were American plans to hand out atomic weapons to Atlantic Pact countries.

Khrushchev was reported to have made no mention in his letter of the Soviet proposal put forward Saturday at Geneva on the atomic test ban issue.

This Soviet proposal would ban all kinds of nuclear tests until Soviet-American experts decide how to police and inspect small underground blasts.

Martin To Study Bus Proposal

HARRISBURG (AP) — A suggestion that school buses pull off highways to load or discharge pupils will require study, Highways Secretary Park E. Martin said Monday.

Martin was asked for his view of a suggestion over the weekend by Dr. Ellwood A. Geiges that special pull-off areas be provided along highways. Geiges is safety committee chairman for the Pennsylvania Motor Federation—AAA.

He said buses stopping in traffic lanes constituted a hazard.

Academies Abolished

West's Arms Plan Told

By Tom Oehlert
GENEVA (AP) — The last stage of the West's disarmament plan would abolish all bases, general staffs and military schools such as West Point and the U. S. Naval Academy, the West disclosed Monday.

But, the Soviet bloc was told at the 10-nation disarmament conference, this stage would be reached only after rigidly controlled worldwide arms reductions made such installations unnecessary.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States moved Monday to tell its story to the Cuban people through Spanish-language broadcasts while it persisted in diplomatic efforts to salvage relations with Fidel Castro's government.

The broadcast program, although limited, was hailed by one senator as a sound step but the latest diplomatic gesture was castigated by another as "the most sickening kind of appeasement."

The one-hour, daily broadcasts in Spanish between 8 and 9 p. m. EST will be limited in effectiveness because they will be transmitted via short wave and thus can be received by only about 3 per cent of the Cuban people who own that type of set.

Still, Sen. Gordon Allott (R-Colo.), hailed the Voice of America program starting Monday night as a step in the right direction. He called it a quick response to his appeal to do something to offset the persistent anti-American propaganda of Castro. He called it a "positive approach and highly encouraging sign."

But in another Senate speech Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.), sharply criticized the State Department for sending Ambassador Philip Bonsal back to Havana.

Smathers told the Senate that Bonsal's return would be interpreted as appeasement throughout Latin America and would indicate the United States is trying "to do business with a dictator."

He said his appeals to keep Bonsal in the United States were disregarded by Secretary of State Christian A. Herter. The senator said renewed attacks on the United States made even as Bonsal was landing in Havana bore out his arguments. The fresh criticisms were made by Ernesto Guevara, Cuba's economic czar, and Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos.

State Department press officer Lincoln White maintained the official position of patience in the face of Cuban attacks and said Bonsal returned "in an earnest attempt to make a constructive contribution toward normalization of relations."

In House Amendment

Dixie Loses Rights Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern congressmen lost again in the House Monday, this time by 20 votes, in an effort to limit the authority proposed in civil rights legislation for voting referees.

A count of 137-137 rejected an amendment to confine the scope of these court-appointed officials to elections of federal officials.

It would have exempted state and local elections.

The margin compared to the 137-134 vote by which the House turned down a similar proposal Friday. Both tallies were taller counts, in which individuals' votes are not recorded.

The referees are proposed as a means for making sure that qualified Southern Negroes are allowed to vote. The referees would be appointed by federal judges.

Rep. August E. Johansen (R-Mich.), offered Monday's amendment, which was solidly backed by Southerners. The Friday amendment was also presented by a non-Southerner, Rep. Homer H. Budge (R-Idaho).

Johnansen called his a "stop-and-look amendment" against too much encroachment of federal authority in local affairs.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), retorted, "We cannot tolerate Jim Crow at the ballot box."

Celler tried to prevent a vote on the Johansen amendment, on the grounds the House had already voted on the issue.

However, Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.), presiding, ruled there was enough difference from Budge's proposal to let the new one go to a vote.

Both the Senate and House made slow progress on the legislation Monday. The House may get to a final vote Tuesday or Wednesday.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), the Senate majority leader, said he hopes that the Senate will vote on as many major points as possible before it gets a bill from the House.

There has been recurring talk, and denials, that the Senate may merely accept whatever bill the House passes, in order to bypass its Judiciary Committee which has a record for holding up action on civil rights bills.

Dr. McGarry Will Be Listed In 'Who's Who'

DR. FRANCIS McGarry, dean of instruction at East Stroudsburg State College, will be listed in the forthcoming edition of "Who's Who in America," the publishing firm of Marquis-Who's Who, Chicago, has announced.

Dr. McGarry, a graduate of the college in 1929, received his Master of Education degree from Columbia Teachers' College, and his Doctor of Education degree from New York University.

Named In '56
After becoming a member of the faculty at the college in 1936, Dr. McGarry was appointed to his present post in 1956. He is an official in the Pennsylvania State Education Assn., and helped in the establishment of a chapter of Kappa Delta Pi on the local campus.

Dr. McGarry has also been active in Boy Scout work since 1940, presently serving as member-at-large from the Pocono District Council.

He is active in college alumni work, serving now as treasurer of the Alumni Club.

Absentee Ballots

ABSENTEE ballots for voting in the April 25 Primary Election may be obtained at Monroe County Commissioners' Office between March 28 and April 19, the office announced yesterday.

This will be the first year that absentee ballots, other than for military personnel stationed outside this area, will be available to State residents.

Allentown Motorist Killed

BRIDGEVILLE, N. J. — An Allentown motorist was killed at 1:45 a.m. yesterday when his car and a tractor-trailer collided on Route 46 in White Township, Warren County.

State Police identified him as James A. Norris, 36, of 115 Fourth St., Allentown.

Troopers said Norris was driving west on the highway and started to cross the east-bound lanes as if to park on the shoulder.

Pulls Across Lane

At the same time, according to police, John Ronald Shilling, 29, of 120 Crook Ave., Jamestown, N. Y., driving the tractor-trailer east on the highway, pulled across the center lane to avoid Norris' car.

As he did so, troopers said, Norris swung back toward the center of the highway and the two vehicles collided.

"DOCTOR KNOWS BEST..."

As American as pumpkin pie is the phrase, "Doctor knows best."

We all remember this truism from childhood.

Yet, in this enlightened day, some people, relatively few in number, attempt to diagnose and treat their own illnesses — a dangerous practice to say the least.

Only your physician is qualified to diagnose and prescribe. When medication is required, our prescription department is equipped to serve your needs.

ELECTRICITY

IS YOUR CAREFREE WAY TO COOK!

FLAMELESS

Electric heat is constant heat—no flickering flames—no burners to clog up. And—electric controls assure you accurate, measured heat so that your food is done when you expect it to be done.

COOLER

Only an electric oven has the six-side insulation that keeps heat in the oven, not in the kitchen. Surface units are designed to cook the food, not the cook. Thus, you and your kitchen stay cooler when you cook electrically.

AUTOMATIC

Old-fashioned "oven peeking" is gone forever electrically — you just set the oven controls and complete meals cook to tasty perfection while you relax.

CLEANER

Flameless electricity just can't make dirt! Everything in your kitchen stays cleaner when you cook electrically—curtains stay crisp and fresh, walls stay clean, pots and pans stay sparkling bright.

Claims Cows Like Cricket

BATH, England (AP) — Dairyman Benjamin Adams claims his cows like to hear about cricket and it makes them give more milk.

Adams says he found out about it when he discovered part of his herd listening attentively to a cricket commentary on his car radio. He then put a radio in the cowshed.

"After hearing one particular commentator, every cow in the shed yields an extra pint of milk a day," says Adams.

Mikels Names Chamber Units

PRESIDENT LeRoy Mikels of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce named committees and they were approved by the board of directors at a meeting in the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday.

They include:

Liaison Committee to work with East Stroudsburg State College for community development — Dale H. Larn, chairman; Col. Lester W. Kale, M. F. Crowe, Frank Michaels, Glenn Sanborn, Jr., and James Devaney.

Political Course

Committee to determine if members are interested in political action course sponsored by U.S. Chamber of Commerce — Gilbert Smrz, chairman; Hanford Cleveland, Edwin Hughes, Devaney and John Dougherty.

Annual dinner—M. S. Baldwin, chairman; Eric Schuchard and Walter Peeney.

Committee to greet and entertain national postal supervisors convention in June—Jack Kerlin, chairman; Jesse Pierston and Theodore Hoffman.

Three members of the Pocono

Mountains Vacation Bureau will be named to serve with them.

William Osborne was named a one-man committee to handle the chamber's display at Tobyhanna Signal Depot.

Seeks support

George Olt asked support of the group for the Evergreen Rescue Squad, but no action was taken.

The directors approved printing of 5,000 copies of a brochure outlining chamber activities, subject to approval of the membership committee.

The committee representing the chamber in its efforts to keep the Gravel Place crossing of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad open reported it will attend the public hearing on the subject Wednesday at 10 a.m. in Monroe County Courthouse.

T. P. Lambert Post Elects Aides Today

MEMBERS of Thomas P. Lambert Post 2540, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will vote for officers for the 1960-61 term at an election today in the post home.

Polls will be open from 6 to 8:30 p.m. and results should be available by about 8:45 p.m., according to Robert Brinn, post commander. He urged all post members to vote.

Following the election, a color-mound film on natural gas, "The Gift from the Earth," will be shown.

Sciota Native Dies In Scranton

D. ROY WOODLING, 69, of Scranton, died yesterday in the Hahnemann Hospital, Scranton. He was born in Sciota and was the son of the late Jerome S. and Anna Reed Woodling.

Mr. Woodling was a member of the St. Peter Lutheran Church, Scranton, Travelers Protective Assn., and several clubs in Scranton for retired persons and the Masons.

He had been associated with his father and brother in the wholesale grocery business until he retired in 1937.

Ball Club Organizer

Mr. Woodling was one of the people that helped to reorganize the old West End A.C. Baseball Club.

He is survived by one son, Robert Woodling, Dallas, Texas; three grandsons; one brother, Odel Woodling and one sister, Bernice, both of Scranton.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 11 a.m. in the D. D. Jones Funeral Home, Madison Ave., Scranton, with Rev. George Fritch officiating.

Interment will be in the Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Jones Funeral Home Thursday after 7 p.m.

All arrangements have been made by the Kresge Funeral Home, Brodheadsville.

Skit Given By Stroud Union Class

THE GENERAL home economics class of Stroud Union High School presented a skit for the child care unit of the class yesterday.

Joan Miller played the part of Snow White, while Pat Riday, Darlene Schaller, Gretchen Weiss, Gloria Everitt and Agnes Stackey were the dwarfs.

The class is composed of 10th, 11th and 12 grade students and is taught by Mrs. Linda Pipher.

Window Display

The window display used in conjunction with the skit was prepared by Monica Borch, Judy Dickinson and Joan Miller.

Harness Unit Gets Petitions

HARRISBURG (AP) — The State Harness Racing Commission Monday received additional petitions calling for an April 26 referendum on legalizing parimutual betting at harness races in Chester County.

A commission spokesman said Alexander Smith, Devault, brought in amended petitions with some 3,100 other names last Thursday.

The commission originally rejected the petitions on the grounds that names and addresses were incomplete and dates of signing were indicated improperly or were omitted.

Thirteen other counties already have been authorized to conduct referenda at the April primary election.

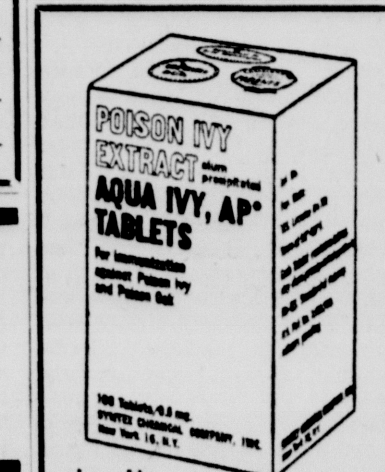

Judge Murphy Back On Bench

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Chief Federal Judge John W. Murphy of the Middle Pennsylvania District returned to the bench in federal court here Monday after having been ill since September.

Looking fit as a fiddle, Judge Murphy told newsmen and court attaches that "I feel fine and I'm mighty glad to be back."

Judge Murphy was greeted by a large number of lawyers and other friends and his office was filled with floral greetings.

Young Disabled Workers Urged To Protect SS Rights

"YOUNGER disabled workers who do not take steps now to protect their social security rights may find that those rights have run out, or their future benefits considerably reduced," warns Harry R. Peterman, district manager of the Eastern Social Security Office.

"Possibly because cash benefits do not become payable to a disabled worker and his dependents until he reaches 50 years of age," Peterman said, "more than 25,000 eligible disabled workers under 50 have not yet applied to have their social security records frozen for the period of their disability."

If a disabled worker's social security record is frozen, the years when he is unable to work because of disability will not be counted against him in determining his or his family's right to future benefits and the amount of those benefits. This provision of the law is similar to the waiver of premium provision in private insurance policies.

Must Have Credit

To have his social security record frozen, a disabled worker must have credit for work under social security during at least five out of the 10 years before his disability began. In addition, he must have a disability so severe that he cannot do any substantial gainful work. The disability must have lasted for at least six months and be expected to continue indefinitely.

Workers with long-standing disabilities who apply to their social security offices before the end of June 1961, may have their social security records frozen as of the time they actually became disabled. Those who do not apply until after that date, may have their records frozen for no more than 18 months back, even though they may have become disabled and unable to work long before that time.

"More important," Peterman said, "those who delay may deprive their families of social security survivors protection. Should a disabled worker die before applying to have his social and children may not be eligible security record frozen, his widow for monthly payments, or may be eligible for only minimum amounts."

A disabled worker under 50 years of age is more likely to have dependent children than an older worker, and, therefore, has a duty to protect their rights to receive child's benefits in case of his death.

Important Feature

Another important feature of the social security disability program, Peterman pointed out, is the provision for the referral of the disabled worker's name to his State vocational rehabilitation agency. Where practical, workers so referred are offered counseling, training, and other services they may need to help them return to work.

"Any disabled worker who believes that he may be eligible to have his social security record frozen, should get in touch with his nearest social security office promptly," Peterman said. A disabled worker who is unable to visit his social security office may telephone or write, or have someone else make the call for him.

Liquor Aide Confirms Area Visits

A SPOKESMAN for the district office of the State Liquor Control Board in Wilkes-Barre yesterday declined to discuss what was found by board agents in their visits to five clubs Friday night.

The spokesman, who asked that his name not be used, confirmed that five clubs — Eagles, American Legion, CLU, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Italian Club — were inspected by the agents.

Certain It Was

Asked why the Elks was not among the clubs visited, the Wilkes-Barre source said, "I feel certain it was." Local spokesmen for the Elks said the club was not visited by the agents.

The spokesman declined to discuss what agents found, although it was understood they were particularly interested in punchboard operations at the four clubs visited.

Board To Consider

Asked whether or not any violations had been uncovered, the spokesman said, "We don't know whether the board (in Harrisburg) will consider them violations or not."

Questioned further, the source declined to say whether or not he considered what the agents found were violations.

The spokesman pointed out that the district office prepares reports based on agents' investigations and submits them to the LCB in Harrisburg.

Any disciplinary action against a licensee or club as a result of violations of the liquor code originates in Harrisburg, he pointed out.

The source described Friday's inspections here as "routine."

Opportunity To Benefit

Gov. David Lawrence's move to create a Citizen's Committee to review the Commonwealth's educational program, and "to make comprehensive recommendations for its improvement and expansion to meet today's needs and those of the next decade" sounds good, but there are questions one might ask before the study begins.

The over-all probe will delve into the state's educational processes, but will all this wealth of data, and we can only assume it will be large, be made available to the taxpayers as well as to the large number of officials given positions on the committee?

The governor stresses that the committee is made up of a large number of "leading citizens" who, he says, are "not specifically identified with any professional educational group or institution."

Again, wonderful, but looking at the members of the committee and their other positions, one cannot help but think they will need help to do this massive job.

They are getting help—the eight so-called "task forces" created for the task of research and administration, seven of these are headed by members of the staff of the Dept. of Public Instruction—in other words, professional educators.

Should there be something wrong, and we certainly hope there is not, will these staff members of DPI make such information available in the entire picture of Pennsylvania's school system?

For example, insofar as curriculum is concerned, Dr. Richard A. Gibboney, director of Curriculum Development for DPI, is in charge of the task force to check curriculum.

The DPI, through its system of "merit" reimbursements, gives school districts additional funds for adding specific courses to curricula and, therefore, the districts add such courses to gain extra funds.

Will Dr. Gibboney criticize such a system on behalf of the committee over the DPI? We doubt it.

In this case we use Dr. Gibboney as an example, not a target. All other task force leaders will have the same dilemma facing them, with the exception of one.

The cost of the entire study has been set at $300,000 by the governor to complete the work.

If this will find definite ways to improve the educational system we heartily approve, but if the results are filed away and no good comes of the whole matter, the $300,000 goes for naught.

Pick Up Thy Bed, And Walk

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Small Politics

The Presidential campaign for 1960 started earlier than usual. The candidates are making more pre-convention speeches than is to be expected at this time.

The guessing and betting comes earlier than is normal in Presidential campaigns. All of this is due to the XXII Amendment to the Constitution which forbids a President to succeed himself more than once.

Were it not so, the likelihood is that President Eisenhower would have run for reelection in 1960; that the Democrats would have nominated an expendable leader who would have run for the prize that it might bring to his grandchildren; and that Eisenhower would be elected to a Third Term, following the precedent set by Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The constitutional amendment upset that pattern and instead of a peaceful, quiet 1960, we are having a very noisy one.

When Eisenhower goes to the Summit Conference, Khrushchev, Macmillan and de Gaulle will know that come January, Ike will be out of office and that a new Secretary of State will be in the service of a new President and that as is customary in the United States there will be little continuity of policy.

This weakens our negotiating position somewhat but not as seriously as Khrushchev may believe. What might come out of this is that the Summit Conference may become an issue in the 1960 campaign. It could be that the Democrats will be opposing a foreign policy which they initiated under Roosevelt.

President Eisenhower has now announced his support of Richard Nixon for the Republican nomination. This comes a little late, particularly as there is no other Republican contender and surely all Republicans will be happy to know that the President caught up with this fact. The elimination of Nelson Rockefeller made it easy for the President to reach this decision.

As long as Richard Nixon is a captive of the Eisenhower Administration, his position on it. The offices up for bidding fall in the same category.

Virtually every office of major statewide importance—other than the Governorship—is at stake, including control of the State Legislature, the 30-seat Pennsylvania congressional bloc, State Auditor General and State Treasurer, along with two state court posts.

With this in mind it is perhaps understandable why 1960 is destined to be a critical year for Republicans if they hope to return to the Governor's Office in 1962 and control once again the destinies of Pennsylvania.

A look at the record shows some difficult tactical obstacles they must overcome.

Back in 1952 when President Eisenhower was elected for his first term he carried the Keystone State by a 270,000-vote margin.

Yet two years later in 1954 when Republicans were still the majority party in Pennsylvania, Democrat George M. Leader ran off with the gubernatorial nod with a 279,000 vote edge over his Republican gubernatorial rival.

Many construe all this as a Democratic trend, pointing to the fact that four years later in 1958 Democrat David Leo Lawrence eased away with the governorship by a margin of 76,083 over his GOP rival, Arthur T. McGonigle.

If it should be the trend and continue in this Fall's elections, Republicans would not only have their hopes dashed firmly of gaining control once more of Pennsylvania affairs, but the all-important 32 electoral votes would go to Mr. Nixon's Democratic opponent.

Since moving into office in Pennsylvania in 1954 Democrats have been quick to consolidate their gains, as for example today some 40 of the state's 67 counties are in their hands.

Republicans have very good cause to worry and fret. The job ahead is uphill—and might well end in sorry defeat this fall.

He needs to establish himself as a leader, not as an Eisenhower substitute.

Recently one of Nixon's biographers, Earl Maza, published some articles in the "New York Herald Tribune," listing Nixon's intimate advisers. It is not a large or a formidable list but it can best be characterized as being a combination of "Roosevelt advisers and a few friends."

Republicans will wonder what goes there and some of them may decide that they will not vote. During the two Dewey campaigns, the practical politicians would say about the conservative Republicans that they had nowhere else to go. The assumption was that they would have to vote for Dewey because they could not vote for a Democrat.

It was very poor political psychology, because Dewey's advisers did not recognize that a citizen might not vote at all. Dewey was twice defeated, although from the standpoint of competence and knowledge, he should have been elected both times.

Nixon, it would seem, is setting out to make a similar mistake. He cannot out-liberal Hubert Humphrey. He cannot out-liberal John Kennedy.

He cannot even attempt to give the impression of being a successor to Franklin D. Roosevelt or Harry Truman. On the Democratic side, Lyndon Johnson is more likely to carry that torch, or perhaps Stuart Symington—but not Nixon.

His problem then is to establish a progressive conservative program which will hold the Republicans and at the same time, win over an increasing number of young voters who have emerged to that estate during the Eisenhower Administration and who knew not Roosevelt or the Depression.

This is the task for a great mind that can influence our leaderless youth to search out the American ideal and hold to it with tenacity in the second half of the 20th Century.

Richard Nixon is young enough to accept such a role; really, he has no other.

As an adjunct to Eisenhower opportunism, he will not improve his position. Nixon must now make his own place in the minds of the people. He cannot be a Vice President much longer; if he is to lead, he must declare himself to be a leader. He must establish leadership particularly among the current generation of cynical young people.

"Since we can't agree on ANYTHING, would you consider a contract for one million dollars a picture for doing absolutely NOTHING?"

By Robert Clark, City Editor

A warm feeling came over us the other day when we heard that the Stroudsburg Lions Club honored William P. Deering. It wasn't the idea that the native of the Hub was the recipient of a gift for his deeds to the organization over the years. But that some people felt that Bill had done something constructive not only for the club but for the area as a whole.

So right they were. Bill Deering, in his own cynical way, is Monroe County. The witty, little fellow who always has a word for everyone, kept on the pulse of the vicinity for years as editor of the Daily Record.

Bill, a retired newsman now, still keeps his hands and mind in local affairs. However, his two chief interests nowadays are chess and the Lions. But you can ask him a question on any problem or situation and he is sure of getting the right answer—however candid it might be.

We've always enjoyed a chat with the Boston small boy. Perhaps it was because we believed some enlightening information would always be forthcoming; or a humorous story would be told to lighten up an otherwise dull day. Anyway, any conversation with William was a worthwhile piece of work.

Today, Deering writes under the pen name of Boston Whitey, a sort of modern Boston Blackie. Bill, however, likes the Whitey part only because it coincides with his fully snow-colored hair.

Like the Lions are indebted to tub-thumper Deering, Bill is indebted to the Lions. Many times he lauds the organization for "allowing" him to get so much out of life.

It isn't many groups which allow a man to express his talents, especially after the so-called individual has been put out to pasture.

This, pasture stint, Bill will never let happen. As long as there is a breath of air in the gentleman from the Bay State no field will ever see his body just wallowing away time. He just isn't built that way.

Maybe the Lions and Deering are like ham and eggs or pepper and salt and go together. Whatever their formula is both have proved a perfect combination for public consumption.

Trout — Monroe County's streams are to be stocked with 25,000 trout. There'll be more stocking when the season advances.

Rebekah's — Rebekah's of the county hold meetings in Tannersville. The four county lodges were joined by members from Wind Gap and Bucks County lodges.

AAUW — Two visiting University Women officials will be entertained by Stroudsburg branch at Stroud Community House. One guest is Mrs. W. C. Vytel, regional V.P., a member of the Delaware Legislature. The other is Mrs. John A. Tallmadge, Penna. State Pres. of AAUW, a member of the faculty of Cedar Crest College, Allentown.

20 Years Ago — The early date of Easter forced florists to extra expense to produce blooming plants, including additional heat to bring out the blooms, but the retail prices were not increased.

War News — The White House warns that hopes for peace in Europe are discouraging. President Roosevelt says that the conference between German and Italian leaders reached no definite decision.

School Show — John S. Cartwright, principal of St. H.S., announced that J. Fielding Voliers of E.S. has accepted an invitation to produce and direct the S.H.S. Follies of 1940.

Woman's Club — The Junior Woman's Club and their Mothers met for annual Mothers Night at Community House. Mrs. Donald Gilpin, pres., extended the welcome and read a poem, "Our Mothers."

Inside Washington

Odd Features In Labor Contracts

Washington — Cooks in Washington's larger hotels are not only permitted to drink beer on the job, it's free and written into their union contract as a fringe benefit.

This is just one of the many odd provisions that somehow get written into labor-management contracts as the era of collective bargaining grows older.

The beer-drinking stems from the fact that kitchens are pretty hot and a man dries out fast while working among the pots and pans. Beer is an effective antidote and the hotels now provide, by contract, three free bottles of the stuff per man per work shift.

Because dishwashers and pantry girls work in a cooler place, they get only one bottle per day.

Some other union requirements are almost as odd. A supermarket has a fund for psychiatric care of its clerks who may need it. Time off during the deer-hunting season is guaranteed by one employer; another gives "maternity" pay to women adopting a child under five.

Progress — It can be happily reported that progress is being made in the war against obscure words in bureaucratic usage.

A former Fulbright professor of English is now teaching a course in a federal agency called "effective writing." His objective is to reduce government communications to the clarity and simplicity of everyday usage.

He's opposed to using "wise" as a suffix in such words as "locationwise" and "administrationwise." He wants to return to using "pay" instead of "remuneration," "buy" instead of "procure" and "examine" instead of "peruse."

However, government isn't the only offender, he said. He gave the following horrible example from a private business letter:

"In order that these data may be disseminated to our satellite sales activities, it will be appreciated if we may be advised concerning the action required to obtain our estimated requirement of 25 copies of the above publication."

Wouldn't it have been much simpler to write "Please send me 25 copies of your publication?"

The Allen-Scott Report

Underworld Infiltration

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Underworld infiltration of business and labor has become so widespread and entrenched that it is an urgent "national problem."

That is the latest finding of the Senate Labor-Racketeers Investigating Committee, in a voluminous report to be published shortly titled "The Criminal Syndicate."

Based on several years of sensational exposes, the report bluntly warns about the growing menace of underworld control of business and labor, as follows:

"The committee's hearings into the activities of the criminal syndicate have firmly convinced the members that underworld infiltration of business and labor is a national problem. Despite strenuous efforts in some parts of the country, the grip of hoodlums and racketeers on the American economy continues to grow."

"There is ample testimony in the committee's records to provide Congress with an understanding of the gravity of this problem. The country must come to realize the highly organized and highly effective internal enemy we face in the modern criminal underworld."

But while the eight Senate probes unanimously agreed on this grim overall conclusion, they split squarely along party lines on a remedy.

The four Democrats, headed by Senator John McClellan, Ark., chairman, vigorously contend the answer is to be found in creating a new federal agency — a National Crime Commission.

This is flatly rejected by the four Republicans. They advocate continuing the investigating committee and leaving enforcement to the FBI and Justice Department.

Partisan politics unquestionably has a lot to do with this sharp split.

The Democrats are known to be planning to offer legislation and to make a series of Senate speeches on their Crime Commission idea. Also Senator John Kennedy, member of the committee and a leading presidential candidate, is credited by insiders with contemplating making a campaign issue of this proposal.

One thing is certain: There is little likelihood Congress will do anything about it this year.

The Pro And Con—But both sides are in complete accord on the extent and seriousness of this sinister problem.

That is bluntly stressed in the report's forthright opening. Cited particularly as a graphic illustration of the "growing power of the American underworld," is the notorious Apalachin, N. Y., meeting in November 1957.

"The great variety of enterprises in which the 'delegates' associated," states the report, "is a key to the diversification achieved by the underworld since the repeal of the Volstead Act."

"During prohibition, the criminal syndicate received training in organization which has been put to good use since."

"Such Apalachin figures as Vito Genovese, Mike Miranda and Russell Bufalino paraded the underworld's contempt for the government and its institutions."

Republicans — "There is a definite possibility that such an agency would provide an official medium for the dissemination of unverified data consisting of rumor and gossip which would not only reflect adversely upon accurate law enforcement work, but could also be used to injure innocent persons. Individuals motivated by revenge or other corrupt motives could submit information for dissemination which is entirely false."

Democrats — "The commission should not in any way infringe on the present rights and activities of the FBI. As contemplated the Commission would not have law enforcement powers, but would act in the area of fact gathering much the same as the Civil Rights Commission. The Commission could gather information on the top criminal leaders of the country, keep close surveillance on their activities, and disseminate their information to local and state enforcement agencies."

Republicans — "The creation of such a federally sponsored agency could be construed as an attempt on the part of the government to inject itself into local and state police affairs. Moreover, regardless of restrictions which might be imposed upon it, it must be recognized that there would be immediate demand that it handle the failure of local law enforcement. This would result in a form of supervision over local agencies and would be a short step from the creation of a national police force which is contrary to our traditional concept of local self-government in the field of law enforcement."

The Republican senators also point out that early last year Attorney General William Rogers set up a special Crime and Racketeering Section in the Justice Department for the express purpose of "coordinating the efforts of the FBI, Treasury enforcement agencies, the Internal Revenue Service, the Customs Bureau, Secret Service and a number of other government agencies to forcefully combat all types of crime, organized and otherwise."

Opinions Of Other Editors

Thoughts In Passing

It is wisdom of the first order to see that the lifespan, whether long or short, comes to us in allotments of 24 hours in which to labor, to relax and to sleep. The poorest of mortals is given no less; the richest no more.

It is still wise to enjoy our blessings, bear our burdens and discharge our obligations on this same 24-hour cycle, looking to the improvement of our minds, the enrichment of our spirits. Many a grandiose plan comes to little because we have bitten off more than we can chew. At the same slow but sure pace we can practice good works.

The gigantic problems and needs of this age appall the mind and make the individual feel helpless before them. But somewhere near at hand is a small need that can be met, a local problem that can be solved. Turn your hand to these.

The greatest wisdom of all is the understanding that life does not consist either of brooding helplessly over the past, or of peering anxiously into the future. Whatever it offers, whether much or little, life is now, this day, this hour!

More loafing is needed by Americans, says Sean O'Faolain, Irish author, now visiting these shores, and at first glance that observation arouses a feeling of despair. For it is a well established fact that the people with the least work to do are the chronic grippers, the malcontents, the meddlers in the affairs of others. In time they become much more adept at sharing their unhappiness with their associates than in doing an honest day's work. And as a result, everybody is penalized.

But O'Faolain makes his point a bit clearer by adding that "in doing nothing, we recognize the most intense, exhausting moments of life," which might be taken to mean that the do-less wonder really is to be pitied.

The Pennsylvania Story

GOP Has Cause To Fret

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Perhaps not so surprising is the fact that Pennsylvania Republicans, although they have coattails of a Republican administration in Washington in this Fall's elections, are by no means confident of pulling through to victory in the host of contests they face.

Admittedly there is a hopeful degree of optimism among GOP leaders of the Keystone State because of the so-called "Eisenhower pull" — but even with this nudge from the presidential slot, top party leaders here in Harrisburg are nevertheless nervously concerned.

Unquestionably this must be the year for luckless Republicans in Pennsylvania to stage their long heralded comeback — or at least start in that direction.

Looking back a few years — in the 1954 electoral fracas they lost everything but their shirts as Pennsylvania in general terms at least, moved into the Democratic column for the first time in 16 years.

Any attempt to return to the status of majority party in the Keystone State for GOPsters must start this year. By force of circumstance more than anything else the fact that Republicans have conceded a strong presidential candidate in Vice-President Nixon is destined to help considerably.

This however is not the final or complete answer. It will require much more than a "presidential push" to shove Pennsylvania into the Republican column. It is this "push" that now has top GOP leaders in a fret.

For Republicans the inescapable fact is that not for some years to come will they have the assist they enjoy this year from the White House. It is a made-to-order boost, providing they can capitalize on it. The offices up for bidding fall in the same category.

Virtually every office of major statewide importance — other than the Governorship — is at stake, including control of the State Legislature, the 30-seat Pennsylvania congressional bloc, State Auditor General and State Treasurer, along with two state court posts.

With this in mind it is perhaps understandable why 1960 is destined to be a critical year for Republicans if they hope to return to the Governor's Office in 1962 and control once again the destinies of Pennsylvania.

A look at the record shows some difficult tactical obstacles they must overcome.

Back in 1952 when President Eisenhower was elected for his first term he carried the Keystone State by a 270,000-vote margin.

Yet two years later in 1954 when Republicans were still the majority party in Pennsylvania, Democrat George M. Leader ran off with the gubernatorial nod with a 279,000 vote edge over his Republican gubernatorial rival.

Many construe all this as a Democratic trend, pointing to the fact that four years later in 1958 Democrat David Leo Lawrence eased away with the governorship by a margin of 76,083 over his GOP rival, Arthur T. McGonigle.

If it should be the trend and continue in this Fall's elections, Republicans would not only have their hopes dashed firmly of gaining control once more of Pennsylvania affairs, but the all-important 32 electoral votes would go to Mr. Nixon's Democratic opponent.

Since moving into office in Pennsylvania in 1954 Democrats have been quick to consolidate their gains, as for example today some 40 of the state's 67 counties are in their hands.

Republicans have very good cause to worry and fret. The job ahead is uphill—and might well end in sorry defeat this fall.

National President Daniels Guest At BPW Conference

Having a member of their own district as national president of the Business and Professional Women gives meetings of District 8 a special flavor these days.

Miss Grace B. Daniels was present for their spring conference held at Pocono Manor Inn and installed the district officers for the coming year.

Louise Kupperman, district director; Helen Wilcox and Laura Crouse, assistants; Edna Aurand, secretary; and Betty Berghauer, treasurer.

Her presence also spiced the plans for the National Biennial to be held July 17-22 in Philadelphia, with Pennsylvania as her home state and District 8 as her home district planning big things.

Guest speaker at the meeting was State President, Helen Warrick. In addition to those shown above, the Stroudsburg club was represented at the head table by its president, Dorothy Storms and Joyce Rutt, former district director.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

If anybody is engaged in writing an ode to Spring, it hasn't come to my attention. Spring, so far, is purely hypothetical with snow yesterday in Tobyhanna, and cold wind in Stroudsburg and snow banks still littering the sides of my driveway.

Between White Haven and Freeland I drove between snow - banks high enough to seem a tunnel. February snowmen still linger on State College lawns.

Women brave enough — or sick enough of their winter dresses—to wear Spring clothes must be prepared to hug the radiators or wear sweaters.

However, attendance at meetings continues better than average since no one is tempted to say "Oh, it's such a nice day, I hate to be indoors" and then head for a walk or window-washing or winter-clothes-airing.

The Easter parade is going to seem pretty drab in snow boots and babushkas, and snow drifts may complicate Easter egg hunts.

Golfers and fishermen who by this time of year are usually checking equipment and waiting impatiently for the word "go," are still dozing by the fireside.

There has been some idle discussion about what would happen if we should have a sudden rise in temperature accompanied by a heavy and warm rain. Would there be a sudden flooding run-off of the mountain snows with the ground still frozen underneath?

It's possible, of course, although the streams are not especially high, yet, and are quite free from ice jams. But there is a figurative ice jam in the social world and if we have a few warm days—watch out!

Everything's going to happen at once: spring cleaning, Easter shopping, gardening, roller skating, car washing, fishing licenses, golf club committees,—we'll be lucky to keep our heads above water.

Former Area Resident Weds In N. Carolina

Newfoundland — A wedding of interest to Pocono Mountain residents was solemnized at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, High Point, North Carolina, at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, February 27.

United in marriage were Miss Norma Jean Ansell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold King Ansell, and Mr. A. William Hahn, of Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam S. Hahn, Denver RD 1, Pa., former Newfoundland residents.

The Rev. William F. Price, rector of the church, officiated at the ceremony before an altar decorated with twin cases of white snapdragons and carnations on either side of the Bible. Similar arrangements in smaller urns were placed on the memorial altar.

Mrs. Clifford Bair, church organist, presented a prelude of organ music, and played softly during portions of the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess gown of white taffeta fashioned with scalloped oval neckline and basque bodice of embroidered chantilly lace. The skirt, which extended into a court train, was applied with lace and seed pearls. Her fingertip veil was attached to a lace cloche.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of lily-of-the-valley and white orchids showered with narrow white satin ribbon.

The maid of honor was Miss Martha Thomas, of Philadelphia, and Miss Mary Lou Grady, also of Philadelphia, served as bridesmaid. The attendants were gowned alike in short bouffant dresses of shocking pink organza over taffeta and tulle designed with oval necklines and cummerbunds of deeper pink satin at the waistlines. They wore matching half-hats of feathers with circular veils and carried cascade bouquets of light pink carnations and red roses.

Serving as best man was Robert Felix, of Philadelphia. Ushers were E. Alan Robins and Powell Alexander, both of High Point.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ansell wore a gown of yellow raw silk with brown accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore Robin's egg blue. Both had corsages of white cymbidium orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception in the parish house of the church. The couple will make their home at 4416 Osage Avenue, Apt. D1, Philadelphia.

Teresa Joan Marsh

Announce Wedding In April

Barrett—Mr. and Mrs. Alvin L. Austin of Mountainhome announce the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Teresa Joan Marsh, to Wayne Allen Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Foster of Mountain Top and Lake Wallenpaupack.

They will be married on Saturday, April 16, in the Mountainhome Methodist Church.

Tannersville Girl Scout Troop Now II

Tannersville — Interme di a Troop 16 of Tannersville celebrated their 11th year of Girl Scouting by entertaining Troop 3 of Redders at a party. A play, "The Singing Lesson" was presented by the Mountain Laurel Patrol and the Red Robin Patrol led group singing.

A proficiency badge chart was presented to the leaders of Troop 16 and a large decorated trefoil cookie, made by the Mountain Laurel Patrol, was presented to leaders of Troop 3.

Decorations for the tea table and cookies, all the work of the troop, were features. Mrs. A. Salzer, Mrs. W. Horst, Mrs. E. Horn and Mrs. C. Brader are leaders of Troop 16 and Mrs. Bert Martin and Mrs. Fred Kjar of Troop 3.

Laurel Troop Marks Birthday

Newfoundland — There were 48 candles on the green and yellow birthday cake at the party of Laurel Girl Scout Troop One at Southern Wayne Joint School. The cake was the project of the Robert Madsen family, with Mrs. Madsen producing the cake itself, and Mr. Madsen doing the decorating.

Games and records were played during the party.

During their "work session," the Forget-Me-Not, led by Thelma Peet, worked on their musician and star badges. The Silver Stars, led by Elsie Madsen, finished their requirements and studied the compass. The Gypsies under the direction of Alberta Marsch, sewed buttons, hemmed materials and worked on their second class requirements, and reported that their seeds are growing in their indoor gardens.

A new member, Betty Gilpin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Gilpin, South Sterling, was welcomed into the troop.

Harmony Class

A "Come as you are" party will be held by the Harmony Class tonight at the home of Mrs. Ruth Heiney, Gilbert St., East Stroudsburg at 8.

Degree Team

The degree team of the Lady Reindeer will meet Wednesday night at 8 at the home of Verna Basselli, Redders.

Named to the visiting committee were Mrs. Delano DeSanto and Mrs. Joseph Calleguiri. Hostesses for April will be Mrs. Matthew Curran, Mrs. Al Carota, Mrs. Joseph DeSanto, and Mrs. Paul DeSanto.

Four new members were welcomed. A film "The Resurrection" was shown by George Reiz and Rev. William Cusick spoke briefly.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Anna Calleguiri, Mrs. Joseph Calleguiri, Mrs. Anthony Costa and Mrs. Michael Chopko.

Rebecca Doney Chosen By West End Aux.

Gilbert — Miss Rebecca Doney has been selected by the West End American Legion Aux. to attend the Keystone Girls Camp, it was announced at the meeting held at Gilbert Inn.

The Auxiliary has reached its quota, it was announced, in the membership goal. They have on hand new 50-star flags which may be purchased by the public from Americanism chairman Mrs. Kenneth Anwalt or other auxiliary members.

Mrs. Marguerite Schultz, president, reported that Mrs. Ann Shafer, Mrs. Rosa Shupp, Mrs. Adelaide Burger, Mrs. Hazelle Achey, Mrs. Kenneth Anwalt and she had attended the Four-County Council meeting at Nesquehoning.

Since March is the birthday month of the American Legion, the auxiliary invited members of the post to the meeting. Their guest Ellsworth Palmer, past district Commander of Easton, spoke. His wife was also present.

Clarence Arnold, commander of post 927, donated two birthday cakes.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, April 11.

The Wyckoff Shopper

"The Friendly Store"

A.B. Wyckoff

STROUDSBURG, PA.

Eight Days . . . Five Nights. For weeks these words, with a big question mark, have gleamed down in fluorescent color from billboards leading into the borough on major highways. For weeks prior to that they were in the making, in our Wyckoff display department, with Arthur Widmer as designer and Fran Meredith assisting in production. Now the secret is out of the bag, via WVPO and this column. This huge eight and five mean that WYCKOFF'S is eighty-five years old . . . and the best sale in its long and remarkable history will officially get under way FRIDAY, following two Courtesy Days, tomorrow and Thursday.

COURTESY DAYS, as most Wyckoff customers know, are days on which YOU personally are invited to shop prior to the breaking of anniversary ads. The advantage of shopping is this: you can come into the store, look around carefully in all departments, and spot sale items that are particularly interesting to you and your family, before these items are advertised and EVERYONE rushes in to snatch them up. Because it is advantageous to you to shop during these two days preliminary to the official opening, the executives have decided to make tomorrow, Wednesday, a TEN HOUR SHOPPING DAY from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m.

The other four night openings will be: Friday, March 25th, Monday, March 28th, Wednesday, March 30th, and Friday, April 1st. However, on two days . . . Monday, March 28th, and Wednesday, March 30th . . . THE STORE WILL OPEN AT NOON RATHER THAN 9 a.m. (Please note these two dates—better still, clip this column for reference.)

I might also mention this . . . while one of our anniversary dates happens to be April Fool's Day, you won't be fooled on any of our advertised merchandise. We are offering bona fide, quality, famous brand merchandise, all spanking clean and sparkling new at 20 to 50% savings. It is the nicest way we know to say "Happy to SERVE YOU" as you say "Happy birthday" to us.

Spahn Stops Old Nemesis

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — The Braves' ace left-hander Warren Spahn, who has beaten the Dodgers only once in the last eight seasons, held Los Angeles to two unearned runs in six innings Monday as Milwaukee registered a 6-4 triumph in an exhibition game.

An error by third baseman Eddie Mathews in the fifth permitted the Dodgers to score twice on Spahn. The Braves' lefty, who has a 14-30 record against the Dodgers, yielded five hits, struck out three and walked none. Don McMahon, who finished, allowed the last two Dodger runs.

The Milwaukeeans scored four runs in the first four innings off Roger Craig and added two tallies that provided their winning margin off Larry Sherry in the eighth.

Musial Leads Cards To Win

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Stan Musial drove in three runs with a home run and a two-run double to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 12-8 exhibition baseball victory over the Cincinnati Reds Monday.

The Reds suffered their sixth Grapefruit League defeat in eight outings as the Cardinals shelved Ed Palmquist, Raul Sanchez and Mike Cuellar for 18 hits.

Home runs accounted for all but one of the Reds' runs. Jerry Lynch unloaded a grand slam job in the sixth and Ed Bailey homered with two on in the eighth.

PIAA Class C
Western Regional Championship
Commodore Perry 59, Hyndman

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Assn. Monday announced sites for the championship basketball playoffs in Classes B and C.

The Class B title game will be held in the East this year. If Columbia wins the Eastern title, the State final will be played Friday night in the Harrisburg Farm Show Arena. No playoff site has been determined should Montrose, the other eastern semifinalist, win.

The Class C final will be held in the West Friday night. It will be at Westminster College if Commodore Perry is the western finalist, or at Juniata College, Huntingdon, if Hyndman wins.

The Class A final, as previously announced, will be held Saturday night in the Farm Show Arena at Harrisburg.

Bucs Formula: Pitching, Defense

FT. MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Too many Pittsburgh players had bad years in 1959. All, or nearly all of them must come back if the Pirates are to figure prominently in the National League pennant race in 1960.

Manager Danny Murtaugh didn't say it exactly that way but he gave every indication that is what he meant.

Murtaugh said: "We're not a fence busting club."

White Deal Ignites Lane And Harris

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—An increasingly bitter Boston-Cleveland feud ignited by the retirement of traded catcher Sammy White Monday moved toward the baseball commissioner for settlement.

Bucky Harris, Boston Red Sox general manager, angrily said Frank Lane, Cleveland Indians GM, had made accusations of fraud.

Harris, denouncing Lane as vicious, insisted he acted in good faith in trading White and Jim Marshall to Cleveland for catcher Russ Nixon.

White promptly quit baseball to devote full time to his investment in a new Boston bowling alley. Lane demanded return of Nixon. Harris refused.

Protests Ta Yawkey

Lane protested in wires to Tom Yawkey, Boston owner, and to Ford Frick, baseball commissioner.

Harris said Lane accused the Sox of trading White aware the veteran receiver planned retirement.

Lane said in Tucson, "If what I've said and done is vicious, then I'm vicious."

"It is now clear that Harris was put on notice by White that he might quit baseball if traded," Lane said when he and Harris were talking about the deal that Harris assured him that White was not going to retire.

"I am happy to leave this to the commissioner," he added.

Harris conceded White was hopeful of not being traded. "But I told him he was subject to trade like any other ball player although there was nothing doing at the time of contract signing."

"If," Harris concluded, "the commissioner decides against the Red Sox it could ruin the whole structure of baseball."

Nixon signed a new contract with the Red Sox Monday, believed to increase his salary about $3,000 a year to about $18,000. Exact figures were not announced.

"I hope I don't have to go back," was Nixon's only comment.

Dr. Frank Kidner, University of California professor and spokesman for the AAUW, said all five member teams would be eligible to become the host club this year.

The AAUW is made up of California, Stanford, Southern California, UCLA and Washington.

Score Wins In Semis

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP) — Struggling Barbara McIntire and steady Joanne Goodwin, Curtis Cup teammates, scored semi-final victories Monday in the North and South Amateur Golf Tournament.

Miss McIntire, from Lake Park, Fla., escaped with a halve on the 18th hole despite a double bogie six to gain a hard fought one up victory over Phyllis Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla.

Petite Miss Goodwin, from Haverhill, Mass., was two down after four holes but didn't lose another in a 3 and 2 conquest of Barbara Williams of Richmond, Calif. Joanne won the last three holes of what had been a tightly contested match before the sudden ending.

It is the smaller fish (which make up the bulk of the catch) that bring difficulty. Actually, many a good meal is discarded at the fishing site.

Best way to handle the small bone problem is to score the fish a couple of times on the sides and fry to a crisp in deep fat. It is much like munching on a thick potato chip, and just as delicious! No need to fret or worry about the small bones because the hot fat has crystallized them. Handle large bones as always.

The secret of deep-frying fish perfectly is to keep the fat hot! Then they will be practically greaseless. It is when the temperature is permitted to drop that deep-fried fish become a greasy mess. Proper heat is at 365 degrees, at which temperature a piece of fresh bread will brown in 40 seconds.

Ex-Redskin Joins Houston

ATLANTA (AP) — A former star end for the University of Georgia and the professional Washington Redskins, is coming out of football retirement this fall.

John Carson announced Sunday he has signed a contract to play for the Houston Oilers of the new American Football League. Carson said the Houston offer was more than he received for any of his six seasons with Washington.

The Redskins released Carson, 30, in midseason last year.

Pin Writer Moves Into 3rd

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Chuck Pezzano, 31-year-old bowling writer for the Paterson, N.J. Morning Call, Monday moved into third place in the all-events of the 57th American Bowling Congress Tournament with 1916.

With 17 days of the 79-day tournament gone, only two other bowlers have bettered Pezzano in the all-events division. Pezzano, who has averaged 195 in 10 years of ABC competition, had an all-events total of 1905 in 1955 and was below 1800 in the other nine years.

To a 640 rolled in the team event Sunday night, Pezzano Monday a 666 in doubles and a 610 in singles.

so it looks like we'll have to rely on our old formula — on defense and pitching.

Pittsburgh's pitching doesn't shape up too good, either, unless such young moundsmen as Benie Daniels, Jim Umbricht and southpaw Joe Gibbon continue to impress as they have done so far this spring. Red Witt and Curt Raydon, along with Don Gross, who were victimized by some arms last year, are still question marks.

Murtaugh has three starters he can rely upon — Vern Law, Harvey Haddix and Bob Friend. Daniels looks like his fourth starter. The salvation of the staff may be little Elroy Face, just as he was last year when he racked up 18 victories, 17 in a row, against only one loss.

Dick Stuart, the defenseless first baseman, will have to carry the home run load again, unless Skinner's bat comes to life. The big fellow hammered 27 home runs last year and was the only Buc to hit more than 13. Only two others — Skinner and catcher Smokey Burgess — reached double figures in four-baggers.

Except for a couple of pitching changes, and catcher Hal Smith, obtained from Kansas City, this is the same team that finished fourth last year. The infield, besides Stuart at first, is Mazeroski at second, Groat at short and Don Hoar at third. There's no problem there. Dick Schofield, Rocky Nelson and Gene Baker are the reserves.

The outfield of Skinner, Bill Virdon and Roberto Clemente is fair but lacking in power. Gino Cimoli may oust one of the three but that is unlikely. Roman Mejias is the other.

Burgess, because of his bat, is the No. 1 catcher, followed closely by the better fielding Smith.

State Senate GOP Fire At Lawrence

HARRISBURG (AP) — Senate Republicans closed ranks Monday in answering a sharply worded criticism of their leadership by Gov. Lawrence.

In the first battle of the crucial 1960 election year, they fired back at Lawrence for charging them with "chronic obstructionism" in running the upper chamber since the 1950s.

The governor's remarks were made Saturday before the United Steelworkers Union State Legislative Committee at Pittsburgh.

Chairman Robert D. Fleming (R-Allegheny) of the Senate Executive Nominations Committee called the charges absurd. He claimed they were calculated to fire up labor support in the November election.

"Inert Mass"

Lawrence described the 1959 GOP-controlled Senate as an "inert mass." He said Republicans over the years have used their Senate control to block passage of legislation he said was needed to solve pressing state problems.

"The Senate Republican leadership has acted as a brake against passage of some very absurd legislation," said Fleming. He added: "We must look after the interest of all of the people in Pennsylvania, not just a certain few. If the governor wants to criticize Republicans for saving Pennsylvania 100 million dollars in taxes, then I'll go along with him."

Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, president pro tempore and the Senate's most powerful GOP leader since 1945, dismissed Lawrence's attack tersely with this reply:

"The only thing is we're not trying to give the state away."

Lawrence's speech was viewed by observers as the opening salvo in an all-out Democratic attempt to win Senate control in the November election. Twenty-five Senate and 210 House seats will be filled in that balloting.

Replying to Lawrence's speech, Fleming said it would have been unprecedented for the GOP leadership to reject a vote by the Labor and Industry Committee that kept a fair housing bill from reaching the floor. The bill would have prohibited discrimination in the selling, leasing or financing of public housing.

The committee killed it in a secret ballot.

"The party in power always accepts the decision of the committee and the governor knows that," said Fleming.

Sen. Thomas P. Harney (R-Chester), committee chairman, said he didn't care to get into a controversy with Lawrence over the matter.

State investigators said rainstorms in the old mining area upstream from Lock Haven brought so much acid drainage into the river the section was turned into an acid stream.

Goddard said operation of the dam, which now is in the planning stage, could help maintain the balance of the river.

Water from Bald Eagle Creek, an alkaline stream, Kettle Creek and others usually neutralize normal amounts of acid mine drainage in the West Branch by the time the river reaches Lock Haven.

The huge reservoir will be constructed near Clearfield. The state has estimated that planning can be completed and construction started before the end of the next fiscal year.

No money for construction of the project was included in the federal budget but the state has asked for a special appropriation of $500,000 to begin the work.

Reservoir To Aid Fish

HARRISBURG (AP)—A plan for using the proposed Curwensville Reservoir to keep acid mine drainage from causing fish kills on the Susquehanna River was outlined Monday by Maurice K. Goddard, forests and waters secretary.

Goddard said the dam could be used to catch large slugs of acid mine drainage coming down the West Branch of the Susquehanna.

Then, he said, it could be released slowly so the acid could be diluted and neutralized by water from streams which come into the river below the reservoir site.

Acid mine drainage was blamed for killing thousands of fish in a section of the river between Lock Haven and Selinsgrove last year.

State investigators said rainstorms in the old mining area upstream from Lock Haven brought so much acid drainage into the river the section was turned into an acid stream.

Goddard said operation of the dam, which now is in the planning stage, could help maintain the balance of the river.

Water from Bald Eagle Creek, an alkaline stream, Kettle Creek and others usually neutralize normal amounts of acid mine drainage in the West Branch by the time the river reaches Lock Haven.

The huge reservoir will be constructed near Clearfield. The state has estimated that planning can be completed and construction started before the end of the next fiscal year.

No money for construction of the project was included in the federal budget but the state has asked for a special appropriation of $500,000 to begin the work.

The committee killed it in a secret ballot.

"The party in power always accepts the decision of the committee and the governor knows that," said Fleming.

Sen. Thomas P. Harney (R-Chester), committee chairman, said he didn't care to get into a controversy with Lawrence over the matter.

State investigators said rainstorms in the old mining area upstream from Lock Haven brought so much acid drainage into the river the section was turned into an acid stream.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

Jailed Amish Drops Out Of Dispute

MORGANTOWN, Pa. (AP)—A Seventh-Day Adventist has dropped out of a school dispute, although he had gone to jail with his Amish neighbors rather than send his children to a school the Amish consider too worldly.

Eli Stoltzfus, dressed in Amish garb, revealed to Justice of the Peace W. O. Trindle Jr. Sunday night that he was not an Amishman, but his wife was and his children were being reared as Amish. He said he would send the two to the Caernarvon Township public school near his farm in the Honey Brook area.

Stoltzfus and eight others refused to pay a $5 fine and costs imposed last week by Trindle for violating the State Compulsory School Attendance Law.

They spent two days in jail and then were released when an anonymous benefactor paid their fines. Three other fathers paid and avoided jail.

The hearing last Monday marked the second round of prosecution against the Amish fathers, who originally numbered 13, with 17 children involved. Stoltzfus was the third to give in and send his children to schools meeting state requirements. The number of children has dwindled to 12.

Stoltzfus said he wanted to help his "Amish brother," but they wouldn't associate with him, or even eat with him in jail.

The Amish and Seventh-Day Adventists, both of Protestant persuasion, hold similar theological beliefs. The Amish, however, are trying to preserve their centuries-old rural way of life. This is the heart of the school dispute.

The Amish believe that the Twin Valley Junior-Senior High School is too far from home—10 miles—and too large. They feel the environment of the 2 million dollar school will lead their children away from the simple, austere Amish life.

The children, seventh and eighth graders, attended a school near their homes until last fall. It was closed when Twin Valley opened.

Various compromise proposals, made by both sides, have failed to resolve the dispute.

For the first round of prosecution, the fathers paid the $5 fines and costs.

Meanwhile, the children are being taught a half-day a week by a private tutor. The state says the tutor is not qualified to teach.

The committee killed it in a secret ballot.

"The party in power always accepts the decision of the committee and the governor knows that," said Fleming.

Sen. Thomas P. Harney (R-Chester), committee chairman, said he didn't care to get into a controversy with Lawrence over the matter.

HIS HIGHNESS, OBA (KING) I. O. GREEN-ADEBO, the Olofin of Ilishan, presides as chairman at the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new Adventist College of West Africa, for which the Stroudsburg Adventist Church will receive a special offering Saturday. At the king's side is Jacob O. Oyerinde, supervising teacher of the church's West Nigerian Mission, and seated directly behind him is the Honorable Ayodele Okusaga, Minister of Education for Western Nigeria.

Lenten Vespers At St. John's

PASTOR Charles H. Ruloff will resume his series of sermons on "Men and Women Who Dared" at the Midweek Lenten Vespers in St. John's Lutheran Church tomorrow evening, Wednesday, March 23rd at 7:45 P.M. Attendances at these Lenten services have been very encouraging and are expected to increase as we come nearer to Holy Week and Easter Sunday.

Altar Flowers for this service will be furnished by the Altar Guild. Larry Nunn will be the Acolyte, Russell Renninger, Edward Yost, Warren Mikels and William R. Yost will be the ushers.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Richard Lindroth will lead the musical portion of the service and sing an anthem. Mrs. Ralph Bender, Jr. will be at the organ.

Catechetical Class
The Pastor's Catechetical Class will meet at 6:45 tomorrow night. The class will attend a Confirmation Rally in St. John's Lutheran Church, Easton next Sunday afternoon, March 27, at 3 o'clock. They will leave the local church at 1:45 p.m.

West Weighing Soviet Proposal

GENEVA (AP) — Western diplomatic sources said Sunday Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has offered either an olive branch or a steel trap in his latest move in nuclear test ban talks.

A complex Soviet proposal, introduced Saturday in the long-drawn negotiations, contains both positive and negative factors which Western leaders must balance against each other.

Under Khrushchev's proposal the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union would conclude a partial treaty enforcing a ban on most types of nuclear test explosions.

F. A. Heberling Services Held

FUNERAL services were held yesterday at 2 p. m. in the Lanterman Funeral Home for Fred A. Heberling, 88, of Buck Hill Falls.

Rev. John S. Carter officiated. Pallbearers were Percy Price Sr., Alex Solt, Percy Price Jr., Charles Kingsley, Fred Dengler and Ross Solt.

Ground Broke For Church Supported By Adventists

GROUND-BREAKING ceremonies have jumped the gun on the special offering for a new college in Nigeria, members of the Stroudsburg Seventh-day Adventist church learned this week.

The church was scheduled to make a contribution Saturday, to help finance an Adventist College of West Nigeria. But Nigeria couldn't wait. Ground has already been broken — with suitable ceremony.

A communique from Roger W. Coon, public relations director for the new college, stated that among those taking part in the ceremonies were His Highness, Oba (King) I. O. Green-Adebo, the Olofin of Ilishan, and the Honorable Ayodele Okusaga, Minister of Education for the Western Nigerian Government.

Symington Says Kennedy Leading For Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) said Sunday that Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) is leading in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Symington, who apparently would like the nomination himself said he is not seeking delegates formally but is becoming "more interested all the time."

The Missouri senator said the first thing he would do if he were president would be to call back some ex-officials of the government who were critical of the country's defense efforts.

He said, "I would get these people together and I would establish a program that involved such things as an increase in the production of missiles, and increase in the modernity of our ground forces."

Services Held For H. A. Russen

FUNERAL services for Henry F. Russen, 78, of East Stroudsburg were held yesterday in the Lanterman Funeral Home at 9:30 a.m. with Rev. William F. Wunder officiating.

Cremation followed the funeral service in the Maple Hill Crematory, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.
